in puentes y fronteras bridges and borders gina valdes uses the copla a spanish verse form that harks back to the middle ages and arises from the popular oral tradition to explore the barriers between people and countries whether those barriers are legal and physical such as the border between the united states and mexico or personal between lovers and friends valdes uses the copla both as a protest against elite poetic forms and for transmitting social protest her voice combines the feminist demand for power and expression with the social critic s demand for justice this volume is a revised edition of her earlier work of the same title previously available only in spanish the english translation is by the author and katherine king the expectations of european planners for the gradual disappearance of national borders and the corresponding prognoses of social scientists have turned out to be over optimistic borders have not disappeared not even in a unified and predominantly peaceful europe but rather they have changed become more varied and in a certain sense mobile taking on an important role in the everyday lives of more people than ever before furthermore it is now widely accepted that borders do not just hinder communication and the formation of relationships but also channel and prefigure them in a positive way presenting a number of studies of everyday life in european borderlands this book addresses the multifarious and complex ways in which borders function as both barriers and bridges focusing on established western european borderlands with the exception of three contrasting cases the book attempts a turn from conflict to harmony in the study of borderlands and thus examines the more mundane manifestations of border life and the complex often unconscious motives of everyday cross border practices the collection of chapters demonstrates that even in the case of open political borders the border remains an enduring factor that is not adequately described as either a problematic barrier or a desirable bridge the studies look at bordering processes not only approaching them from different disciplinary angles sociology anthropology geography history political science and literary studies but also choosing different scales and making comparisons that range from different borders of one country to the reactions and attitudes of different individuals in a single borderland village south asian diasporas can be considered transcultural legacies of colonialism while constituting transcultural forms of postcolonial reality in today's globalised world the main focus of investigation here is south asian women's fiction where diverse forms of identity negotiation undertaken by the protagonists in a number of contemporary novels from the 1990s to the early 2000s are read as transgressions the themes of early gendered experiences of south asian indentured labour migration female genealogies and transmissions of cultural heritages down female lines as well as negotiations of patriarchal violence are read using a framework culled from postcolonial and feminist criticism the literary representations of south asian diasporic female experience in these texts are forms of commentary and critique by contemporary south asian diasporic women writers hence these novels can be viewed as feminist strategies of textual creativity with distinct political aims of presenting transformative narratives addressing the tensions of diaspora and patriarchy this book is intended to contribute to the current spectrum of academic work being done in diaspora studies in that it brings together the concepts of diaspora transculturality contemporary women's writing and transnational feminist critical approaches to bear on south asian women's diasporic literature contrary to the celebratory notion of the concept in much theory transculturality as represented in these texts is fraught with ambivalence
